Japan CSO Coalition for DRR

About JCC-DRR

The Japan CSO Coalition for Disaster Risk Reduction (JCC-DRR) is a network of Civil Society Organizations in Japan that are working together on reducing disaster risks in non-disaster times, ensuring that emergency response processes are thoroughly planned and carried out in a well-coordinated manner, and proactively planning for and conducting recovery activities after a disaster in the build back better spirit.

The network aims to contribute to a resilient society with the following activities:

Monitoring of the SFDRR

JCC-DRR becomes the focal network on monitoring of implementation of the SFDRR and SDGs, and a constructive discussion platform has been created with the Japanese Government (Cabinet Office) on disaster risk reduction implementation in Japan.

Mainstreaming of DRR

JCC-DRR, with the diversity and strength of its members, formed sub-committees which act as working groups that mainstream DRR into relevant sectors which contribute to the enhancement of Japan's DRR capacity.

Key thematic initiatives include the 10 Lessons from Fukushima Booklet, Gender and DRR, Sendai Framework Citizens Booklet, Green Infrastructure, Young Leadership, and Advocacy groups.

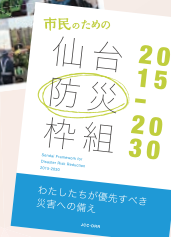

Advocacy

JCC-DRR's global advocacy on lessons learnt from Japan leads to concrete implementation of risk reduction measures regionally and globally based on the SFDRR, including risk reduction on nuclear power plants. Also, lessons learnt from Japan as well as progress on the implementation of the SFDRR in Japan are captured in key DRR forums and documents.

"10 Lessons from Fukushima" Commitments towards the WCDRR Achieved

JCC-DRR committed to publish and distribute the '10 Lessons from Fukushima: Reducing risks and protecting communities from nuclear disasters' booklet into 10 languages.

JCC-DRR also produced the 'Citizens' Sendai Framework for DRR' to enhance the understanding and importance of the DRR activities.

Commitments towards WHS and beyond

The World Humanitarian Summit (WHS) indicates that current humanitarian needs are at its highest since the second world war, and the 'Agenda for Humanity' has been proposed by the Secretary-General of the UN, with 5 Core Responsibilities. JCC-DRR would like to make commitments towards Core Responsibility 3, 4, and 5.

Core Responsibility

Through activities of thematic sub-committees, enhance understanding of social and physical vulnerabilities to disaster risks, and lead them to further disaster risk reduction activities.

Enhance gender and diversity equality/equity awareness, and with experience from Japan, strengthen the understanding that women and people with vulnerabilities should be involved in decision making in order to create a truly resilient society.

Proactively nurture leadership within youths through JCC-DRR's multi-sector, multi-generational activities.

Core Responsibility

04

Promote further innovation forum activities to proactively find solutions to unsolved problems through strengthened multi-sector approach.

Involve many others, including awareness of citizens, who are not part of humanitarian/DRR fields by bridging the gap of emergency response and development through a DRR lens.

Core Responsibility

05

Enhance disaster risk reduction and advocacy activities through better understanding various natural and man-made risks, and link these to monitoring of SFDRR.

Enhance global risk reduction measures on cascading disaster impacts through promotion of lessons learnt from Fukushima.

Develop finance schemes to enhance and promote innovation measures in humanitarian and disaster risk reduction challenges.
